Spring A Haiku Story

Spring is an anthology of 14 haiku, one per page, which are strung together to create a narrative that tells the story of a stroll that a boy and a girl take together through a village during the spring thaw. The event described by each poem is simple--a snail notices its shadow; a sleeping dog is tickled by the branches of a willow--but the overall effect is rich and entertaining.

8 Haiku Nature Poems About Spring. Spring is a time of great renewal. The grasp of winter no longer holds us, and nature reveals incredible beauty. We see budding leavings, opening flowers, rainstorms that showcase rainbows, and the glowing warmth of the sun. Bees buzz from flower to flower, and the birds' songs are heard again in the early morning hours.

Aside. Celebrating International Haiku Poetry Day! As I wandered out into the garden with my trusty camera early this morning, much to my surprise, an icy blanket at the edge of the rock garden had melted and a family of opening jonquils greeted me with their smiles. Being the first blooms of the season, they simply made my day and inspired me to write "A Spring Concerto," a haiku(Japanese-inspired, non-rhyming three-line: 5-7-5 syllable poem).

Haiku is an unrhymed, syllabic literary form adapted from the Japanese: three lines of five, seven and five syllables. Because it is so brief, a haiku is necessarily imagistic, concrete and pithy, juxtaposing two images in very few words to create a single crystalline idea.

Haiku: Condensing Experience to 3 Brief Lines

The word "Haiku" has two syllables: Hai-ku; the word "introduction" has four syllables: in-tro-duc-tion. "Haiku" is a traditional form of Japanese poetry. Haiku poems consist of 3 lines. The first and last lines of a Haiku have 5 syllables and the middle line has 7 syllables. The lines rarely rhyme. Here's a Haiku to help you remember:
