The self-model is the central concept in the theory of consciousness called the self-model theory of subjectivity. This concept comprises experiences of ownership, of first person perspective, and of a long-term unity of beliefs and attitudes. These features are instantiated in the prefrontal cortex. This theory is an interdisciplinary approach to understanding and explaining the phenomenology of consciousness and the self. This theory has two core contents, the phenomenal self-model and the phe

A subject is a being who has a unique consciousness and/or unique personal experiences, or an entity that has a relationship with another entity that exists outside itself (called an "object"). A subject is an observer and an object is a thing observed. This concept is especially important in Continental philosophy, where 'the subject' is a central term in debates over the nature of the self.

Subject (philosophy) - Wikipedia

In postmodernist theory, subjectivity means to take the perspective of the individual self, rather than some neutral, objective, perspective, from outside the self's experience. Feminist theory takes note that in much of the writing about history, philosophy and psychology, the male experience is usually the focus.

The modern philosophical construct of the rational subject projects a self that is not prey to ambivalence, anxiety and depression, obsession, prejudice, hatred, or violence. A disembodied mind, the body is peripheral—a source of desires for homo economicus to weigh and a distracting temptation to the Kantian ethical subject.

Feminist Perspectives on the Self (Stanford Encyclopedia ...

"The academic bias against subjectivity not only forces our students to write poorly ("It is believed..." instead of, "I believe..."), it deforms their thinking about themselves and their world. In a single stroke, we delude our students into believing that bad prose turns opinions into facts and we alienate them from their own inner lives."
