The Concerto draws on the imagery of such practices in a confrontation of metal and wood versus metal and wood: the trombonist/offender has his constant support system of the brass and string sections which are persistently and vigorously opposed by metal percussion and woodwind, who always hunt in packs (apart from the rare occasions when the bassoons attempt to invade the trombonist's space).

Concerto for Trombone | Michael Nyman - Wise Music Classical

This is a single-movement work based on a 'ghostly' theme of seven notes (and three pitches) which is heard at the start and repeats in many different guises throughout the opening slow section. Each time it is joined by new counter-material, most importantly a high expressive melody on solo trombone.
